JANUARY 2018 VOLUME 1 ISSUE 1

Labour Line

ARTICLES AND NEWS OF NOTE

The Home Line

General Meeting

The best place to have your say and find out about what is going on.

Tuesday January 23
Renfrew Branch
6 pm

Equal pay for work of equal value.

Add your name for action on pay equity: http://www.ndp.ca/payequity?source=20171229_SOC_PAY_2_AYN_TW_NDP_EN_ALL&utm_medium=SOC&utm_source=NDP&utm_campaign=20171229_SOC_PAY_2_AYN_TW_NDP_EN_ALL

Canada Post door-to-door service unlikely to return: Union Rep

An official with the Kamloops local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers predicts door-to-door service will never return to areas currently served by community mail boxes. Read More: http://vancouversun.com/news/local-news/canada-post-door-to-door-service-unlikely-to-return-union-rep

Postal workers overwhelmed by crushing Christmas season

Canada Post workers have been so inundated with packages from online shoppers this year that some are working from dawn to dusk or longer, according to the Mike Palecek, the national president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers. Read More: http://www.cbc.ca/amp/1.4466613?__twitter_impression=true

Helping migrant workers must be part of new food policy

Instead of treating migrant workers as faceless units of labour, Canada's national food policy must recognize migrant workers as vital members of our urban and rural communities. Read More: https://www.thestar.com/amp/opinion/contributors/2017/12/22/helping-migrant-workers-must-part-of-new-food-strategy.html?__twitter_impression=true

The surest way to change society is not by volunteering ... it is by creating jobs

Mazí Mas combines training and work, because one cannot bring about lasting change without the other. Read More: https://amp.theguardian.com/lifeandstyle/2017/dec/30/immigration-training-women-social-enterprise-charity-funding-niki-kopcke-mazi-mas?__twitter_impression=true