

Labour Line

ARTICLES AND NEWS OF NOTE

The Home Line

CUPE National 2019 membership survey

This is your opportunity to anonymously and confidentially provide your thoughts and experiences with CUPE National <https://tinyurl.com/yynyh79f>

Red State Revolt

Eric Blanc's Red State Revolt: The Teachers' Strike Wave and Working-Class Politics offers a sharp summary of the lessons of last spring's teacher insurgencies. He drives home the points that (1) strikes are the source of our power and (2) if it can happen there, it can happen here
<https://tinyurl.com/y3jucesv>

From B.C. to Ontario: Fighting for Tips

The BC Government announced legislation meant to ensure that a worker's gratuities, in response to rampant tip theft, are protected under the Employment Standards Act

<https://tinyurl.com/y3gfgcwb>

'What other industry would allow that?': What it's like to work for service apps

Workers and labour advocates are highlighting aspects of the gig economy and trying to raise awareness of the reality of precarious work

<https://tinyurl.com/y4nzzxdt>

Uber, Lyft driver strike latest move to organize gig workers

A strike by Uber and Lyft drivers in cities across the United States this week caused barely a ripple to passengers looking to catch a ride, highlighting the challenges in launching a labor movement from scratch in an industry that is by nature decentralized

<https://tinyurl.com/y354omno>

Ethiopia's garment workers make clothes for some of the world's largest clothing brands but get paid the lowest

A report by the New York Stern Center for Business and Human Rights shows that despite the growth in the garment market, Ethiopian garment factory workers are, on average, the lowest paid in the world

<https://tinyurl.com/y65t329j>