

Almost half a million Canadians have been without work for six months or more. Many are relying on low-wage, part-time and precarious jobs to support their families.

We've come a long way, but people are still struggling and the pandemic isn't over.

We need a recovery plan that puts workers first – because workers ARE the recovery.

Canada's political leaders are in full campaign mode. That means we're expecting an election before the fall. It also means we need to be ready.

Let us know which issues matter most to you and your family.

[Take the pre-election
survey today](#)

Canada's unions are ready to fight for all workers. Let us know how you'd like to get involved.

Looking forward to reading your responses,

-Brent

Brent Farrington
National Director
Political Action & Campaigns Department
Canadian Labour Congress
Standing up for workers and their families

Canadian Labour Congress/
Congrès du travail du Canada

2841 promenade Riverside Dr
Ottawa, Ontario K1V 8X7
613-521-3400